PROFILE

Colin has an active international practice as arbitrator and lead counsel across multiple jurisdictions. He is the first ASEAN national lawyer to become an English Queen's Counsel (now King's Counsel). He also practices as barrister and King's Counsel from 36 Stone chambers in London and also as an advocate & solicitor in Brunei from Dr Colin Ong Legal Services. In 2010, he became the first ASEAN practising lawyer to be elevated to a Master of the Bench of the Inner Temple. He is currently the Senior Bencher of the Inner Temple in Singapore. In addition to litigation matters in England & Wales, Brunei and Singapore, he regularly acts as counsel in international arbitrations across multiple jurisdictions in the Asia-Pacific; Europe, Middle East, US and he sits as arbitrator in even more seats. His case usually involves very high value, complex commercial, construction and investment disputes. In addition to having acted and/or advised in numerous institutional and ad hoc arbitrations for international corporate clients, he has also acted in matters both for and against state and state owned entities and is widely acknowledged as an expert in both civil and common law. He has been involved in over 400 arbitrations as counsel or as arbitrator (chairman, co-arbitrator and sole arbitrator) in commercial, construction and investor-state disputes under most of the world's leading ad hoc and institutional rules. He is the only English Silk who does not hold UK nationality or UK-dual nationality and is often appointed as neutral national presiding arbitrator. He is ranked as a Thought Leader in three field of Arbitration, Construction and Commercial Litigation by Who's Who Legal since 2019. He has been ranked as a top 30 global elite arbitration practitioner by Expert Guides-Best of the Best: Arbitration. Who's Who Legal 2024 Arbitration has described him as "the undisputed superstar in Asia as both arbitrator and counsel...his mastery of both civil and common law, places him at the pinnacle of legal market".

The core of Colin's work revolves around international commercial arbitration, complex cross-border high level disputes, financial disputes; large construction projects, post M&A and corporate cross-border litigation. Colin has been instructed as lead counsel on a wide range of high-profile matters, often relating to or within the Asia-Pacific, in various sectors and industries, including banking & finance; company matters; energy; infrastructure, minerals; offshore corporations and trusts, post mergers and acquisitions, hotel, shipping, fisheries, insurance, construction, telecoms and IT, technology products, renewable energy (including solar and wind), and mining.

Colin is consistently highlighted by the legal directories for his mastery of strategy, advocacy and his ability to quickly to get to grips with disputes involving complex factual and technical matters which required a solid grasp of the details as well as expert evidence. He is regularly described by his opponents and by the directories as having a full mastery over both common law and civil law.

Colin is consistently referred to by the directories as a team player. He has led large teams of counsel in many significant cases across many fields. He has also led other Senior Counsel in both arbitrations and also before the Singapore Courts. He is known to be user-friendly and versatile and often work together with clients, instructing solicitors, other barristers and expert witnesses with a view to formulating the best possible case and strategy in order to maximise the best prospects of success. He has worked frequently as co-counsel with lawyers qualified in other jurisdictions and is often appointed as chairman in many arbitrations.
